CRANBROOK MUSICIANS GOING TO BLAIRMORE

When the Crows' Nest Pass Musical Festival holds its annual session at Blairmore on November 2nd, 3rd and 4th, there will be several competitors from Cranbrook. Of those intending to compete are Mr. W. H. Moser's violin pupils: Gordon Finley, Nan McLeary, Annie McGillivray and Lois Hardy. Of Miss Chardon's piano pupils there will be Ruth Hardy, Glenn Finley and Elizabeth Spreull, and possibly one or more others.

At the Nelson-Trail Musical Festival last May, Gordon Finley carried off high honors, when he won marks of 85 and 86, a total of 171. He entered the competition in the violin solo, in the under 19 years class. The adjudicator spoke very complimentary of his work at the time.—Cranbrook Courier.

The engagement is announced of Catherine Isabel, only daughter of Mrs. Stuart and the late Mr. T. R. Stuart, to Dr. H. Baden-Powell, son of Rev. Dr. Thomas and Mrs. Powell, the marriage to take place in Calgary early in November.

The marriage took place at St. Michael's church, Calgary, last week end, of Phyllis Maud, only daughter of Mrs. F. Phillip and the late Mr. A. J. Jernon, to Mr. W. (Bill) Mulholland, second son of Mrs. Mulholland and the late Mr. Mulholland, both of Calgary.

The Ladies' Aid of the United church will hold their annual sale of Needlework, Home Cooking and Tea on Saturday afternoon, October 31st, in the church auditorium, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

MUSIC FESTIVAL ADJUDICATOR

VERNON BARFORD, M.A., A.A.G.O.

Vernon Barford, English by birth, received the groundwork of his musical education as a chorister in Worcester Cathedral. At the age of seventeen he won an organ scholarship at Oxford University and went into residence there for a year.

Coming to Canada in 1895, he was for four and a half years organist and choirmaster of the Pro-Cathedral at Qu'Appelle. In 1900 he was appointed organist and choirmaster of All Saints, Edmonton, and has completed nearly thirty-seven years' service at that church—now the Cathedral.

His interests have included practically all branches of musical activity; in 1904 he organized the Edmonton Operatic Society and, during the following years produced over a dozen of the best known comic operas and musical comedies. He was, for several seasons, conductor of the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra and, for five years had charge of the Edmonton Mendelssohn Choir. With this body of singers and various festival choruses he has produced a large number of major secular works with chorus and orchestra numbering from a hundred and fifty to three hundred performers.

He was one of those responsible for the organization of the first Provincial Musical Competition Festival—that having been held in the spring of 1908.

During the past four years he has given several series of lecture-recitals over the air from the University studios—nearly seventy lectures in all—and has also broadcasted three series and has also broadcasted three series of "singing lessons" specially for the benefit of rural school teachers preparing pupils for the various district competitive festivals.

A few years ago the Senate of the University of Alberta, in recognition of his outstanding work in the realm of music, conferred on him the degree of Master in Arts, honoris causa.

As an adjudicator Mr. Barford has had wide experience; he has twice acted at Blairmore, in 1926 and 1927, and other important engagements have included festivals at Grand Prairie, Peace River, Drumheller and in the Okanagan Valley.

TAX PRINCIPLES

BEING WATCHED

The declaration of tax principles recently adopted by the Automobile Club of Michigan is being watched with interest by the motor leagues and tourist associations of the western provinces of Canada.

It calls for a gasoline tax of 2 cents a gallon, equitable registration fees and no diversion of highway funds for other purposes. Some features of it were in fact issues in recent election campaigns in Canadian provinces.

Its most practical application has been in Missouri. Here the authorities have demonstrated how a State can be taken out of the mud and its motorists provided with a highly efficient highway system without burdening car owners or other taxpayers. Since 1919 the Missouri system has gone from a few disconnected country roads to a co-ordinated system of primary, secondary and farm-to-market roads, totalling 12,545 miles. About 3,000 miles are the high-cost concrete type. Another 2,000 are of the bituminous; 6,000 miles are gravel and 792 miles are earth roads.

Joe says they should change the name of the Albertan to "George Washington Albertan."

ALBERTA PUBLISHERS ARE AGAIN ROUSED

COLEMAN, Oct. 20.—The following letter, on behalf of Alberta division of Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association, has this day been addressed to Premier Aberhart, concerning his continued unjustified attacks on the press of Alberta.

The Letter

"Honorable William Aberhart, Premier of Alberta, Edmonton.
"Dear Mr. Aberhart: On October 10 a copy of a resolution was forwarded to you from the annual convention of Alberta division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association, urging you to take action against newspaper publishers who you accused of telling lies in connection with your policies.

"So far no acknowledgment has been received of this resolution, but instead you continue your misrepresentations over the radio against all newspapers, when the way is open to you to effect a remedy without inflaming public opinion in an unjustifiable manner against newspaper publishers, who on the whole are as keenly interested in good government as all other citizens.

"An opportunity presented itself for you to meet the publishers when they recently met in Calgary, both by invitation fully a month ahead of their meeting, and again during the convention, when you were staying in the Palliser hotel on October 9-10.

That this opportunity was not taken advantage of certainly is not the fault of the publishers. Your attacks on the press as a whole are grossly inconsistent with the facts, for the great majority of weekly newspapers have given fair and accurate news reports of all Social Credit activities, have maintained the dignity of the office of premier and have extended the same courtesies to your party as to other political parties.

"They maintain they have the right to express their editorial opinions just as freely as your opinions are expressed over the radio, and the newspaper columns of all newspapers have been open to those who wish to write letters to the press, both Social Crediters and those opposed to your theories.

"I trust you will either refrain from your continued misrepresentation of the press, or take definite action against those newspapers which you claim are telling lies.

"Yours very truly,

(Signed) H. T. HALLIWELL,
"President, Alberta Division,
Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association."

CLAIM ALBERTA'S DECLINE LESS THAN CANADA AS WHOLE

The effect of the depression in Alberta, in so far as it can be measured statistically, was no worse than in other parts of Canada. Figures quoted in the Elliott-Walker survey of the province's fiscal problems show that for the whole of Canada the national wealth shrank from $31,275,814,000 in 1929 to $25,768,236,000 in 1933, a reduction of 17.60 per cent. During the same period the wealth of Alberta shrank from $2,427,967,000 to $2,035,576,000, a reduction of 16.16 per cent.

The total agricultural wealth of Canada fell from $7,939,477,000 in 1929 to $5,563,790,000 in 1933, a reduction of 29.92 per cent. The comparative decrease in Alberta was from $1,096,356,000 in 1929 to $873,115,000 in 1933, a reduction of 20.50 per cent.

In 1929 Alberta's total wealth was 7.76 per cent of the national wealth of all Canada. In 1933, owing to the somewhat smaller shrinkage of values in Alberta, her share of the national wealth had risen to 7.90 per cent.

UNIVERSITY LOSES $15,000

BY GOVERNMENT'S ACTION

Reduction in the interest paid by the Alberta Government on its bonds will reduce the revenue of the University of Alberta by $15,000 or $16,000 per year after next year, it is alleged from the Elliott-Walker report on fiscal affairs of the province.

The report states that the average interest stipulated in the bonds is 4.9 per cent, and of the total the law provides that only 56 per cent shall be paid after the current fiscal year. The University holds in its endowment fund, $723,160 of the bonds, which, assuming that its holdings call for an average of 4.9 per cent, means that it has been receiving $35,000 annually from this source, which will be reduced to a little less than $20,000 next year if the law changing the contract with the investors remains in force.

IT DOESN'T PAY TO ADVERTISE

At least that is what I have been told by men who should know better. These same men, almost in the same breath, have asked me "what is the matter with business?"

Well, maybe I'm wrong, but I can't resist mentioning a few statistics that I had an opportunity to inspect the other day. Statistics that were gathered by and for one of this country's leading wholesale houses. They had been wondering what was the matter with the individual storekeeper's business. Here they are:

Mail order houses took out of Alberta last year, 1935, a total of $25.60 per capita; imagine; $25.60 on an average from every man, woman and child in this province!

Chain and department stores last year didn't do quite so well. All they took was $22.04 for every person living in Alberta!

Combined, they took out of Alberta, a total of $3,391,840.00. When I say they took it out of the province, I mean just that! The percentage left behind is so small it is insignificant. Why, the catalogues that get the end of this business are not even printed here.

The man that told me advertising didn't pay was crazy as a bedbug. He was talking through his hat about something he couldn't have known anything about. If these lads would Undoubtedly the work of a mysterious firebug, a seventh fire in about as many days occurred at Frank on Tuesday evening, when flames consumed a building belonging to Alex. Goyette, together with its contents, wooden water pipes, etc., belonging to the village. The loss is roughly estimated at around $600. Flames were first noticed about 5.15 in the evening, just a few minutes before the time the night patrol would have been on the job. It is rumored that a man was seen leaving a car on the highway and moving to and from the building.

Ralph Ekersley, missing from Kimberley since September 26th, was picked up last week a few miles west of Macleod by J. J. O'Neill, of the Kimberley Pharmacy, who was returning by car from the prairies. O'Neill recognized the missing man and induced him to get in the car and return home, arriving at Kimberley about 4 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. Ekersley appeared to be very much worn out and somewhat dazed, and for several days following was unable to give a clear account of where he had been or what he had been doing during the almost three weeks of his disappearance.

keep their mouths shut, nobody would ever guess they were daffy.

The story in a nutshell is this: The mail order and chain and department stores have done a better job of merchandising than the individual has done. They have taken the business right out from under the nose of the man who says "It doesn't pay to advertise."

And how do they do it?—If you didn't get it yet, I'll repeat it again—they got it by using good proven methods of merchandising—and advertising! (Excerpta from a recent address of well known service club by E. C. Patey, eminent authority on "Modern Merchandising.")

New Uses For Old Products

The agricultural depression which has contracted the farmers' pocket books in Western Canada almost to the vanishing point in the past five or six years may be attributed to two main causes—a drought cycle and an undiscoverable surplus stock of wheat of great proportions, the inheritance of the bountiful harvest of 1928, followed by a fair average crop the succeeding year.

The drought was a visitation of Nature itself, over which mankind could have little or no control, and if this had been the sole cause of an attenuated agricultural bank account the effects of the depression would not have been nearly so severe in Western Canada as they have been, for during the era of gloom the drought area shifted its local somewhat each year though, it is also true, that there are some areas which have sustained the full impact for the entire period.

Over the entire depression period, however, many areas which have experienced drought have reaped some harvests, varying widely in degree, and had good prices for wheat prevailed, many farmers over large tracts would have reaped sufficient returns to carry them through without aid or with comparatively little assistance.

Unfortunately however, this was not the case and the average comparatively low price of farm products and particularly wheat, at times far below the cost of production, was as much a factor in creating conditions which have necessitated debt adjustment on a wide scale as was the lack of moisture and its resultant duststorms and scourge of insect pests.

Dry periods undoubtedly will come again and little can be done to circumvent their ill effects in loss of production and yields beyond perhaps a small measure of conservation, but the lesson of the six year period will have been lost unless some consideration is given to the necessity and wisdom of devising some measures to obviate, or at least reduce, the hazards of a repetition of prices below the cost of production.

There are several directions in which concentration on this problem might well be directed, apart from the erstwhile popular proposal to curtail production. There is the matter, for instance, of efforts to create consumer demand in existing markets for improved and more tasty products of the grain fields, to which reference has previously been made in these columns, and serious consideration might well be given to the possibilities of converting products of the field to industrial uses in the domestic market.

Henry Ford demonstrated that much might be done to make agricultural products available to industry when his experiments revealed that by-products of the soy bean make excellent material for construction of certain automobile parts and accessories, and along similar lines, experimentation in the conversion of grains into alcohol for industrial use and on a commercially feasible basis should be pushed with vigor in the laboratories.

So far the conversion of grain into industrial alcohol has not proved a commercial success, but a fractional advance in the price of gasoline or a reduction of a few cents in the cost of production of alcohol from such source would place it in the field of a competitive fuel with gasoline, a commodity which is used in large quantities by the farmers themselves as well as other consumers in Western Canada.

That greater use of alcohol as a fuel is inevitable in the not far distant future is the conclusion of the "Pennsylvania Farmer" which, in a recent issue had the following to say on the subject:

"The farmer has a double interest in liquid fuels. He is now a leading consumer; he may some day be an important producer. Alcohol made from farm crops can be mixed with gasoline to make a fuel which will run a combustion engine. Since the supply of petroleum cannot last forever a wider use of alcohol as a fuel is inevitable. It is being hastened by a score of foreign countries by legislation requiring, by taxation or otherwise, a mixture of alcohol with gasoline.

"Without such government intervention the blending does not occur, because gallon for gallon, gasoline is cheaper and better than alcohol. Under present conditions the effect of this legislation is to subsidize the producer of alcohol at the expense of the consumer of fuel. When producer and consumer is the same fellow it is doubtful if he wants this subsidy.

"In our country the farmer consumes a fourth of the gasoline used. If the price were raised four or five cents a gallon, the extra cost would cut the profits from corn, sugar cane, potatoes, etc., that went into alcohol, while the farmer who grew no alcohol-producing crops would be dealt with unfairly.

"Until gasoline prices advance materially it would appear that hopes for a wider use of alcohol as fuel lie in research rather than in legislation. When alcohol can be made cheaper or better than gasoline, no law will be needed to promote its use, and until then any such law is of questionable value to farmers."

Extracting Precious Metals

A New Science In The Mining World To Assist Operators

"Mineralography," a new science in the mining world designed to assist mining operators in their work of extracting precious metals, was described and demonstrated to delegates of the British Columbia division of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy meeting at Vancouver.

In a darkened room pictures of hiding places of particles of gold among base minerals were shown, magnified many times, while Dr. M. H. Haycock, of the Dominion department of mines, and Dr. H. V. Warren, of the University of British Columbia, stood in the background and described the new science.

Specially constructed instruments were used to polish ore specimens to the finest surface possible and these are magnified many times by powerful glasses for scientific study.

In this way, the two doctors said, the new science has already become of great assistance to the mining industry and promises to become still more valuable in determining the best treatment for gold extraction and mineral separation generally.

Claims World Undernourished

Australian Specialist Thinks More Protective Foods Should Be Produced

The world is undernourished, F. L. McDougall, Australian agricultural specialist, said in a report to the biennial general assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome.

Many world agricultural problems would be solved, he said, if certain nations would increase their production of "protective foods" instead of concentrating on high wheat yields. "Satisfactory human diet must contain sufficient quantities of the kinds of food that provide these hitherto obscure elements in nutrition," the Australian said, explaining "the foods particularly valuable in this respect are milk, cheese, butter, fresh fruit and vegetables, eggs, fish and meat."

Coronation Oath

May Be Slightly Changed To Comply With Statute Of Westminster

When the king takes the coronation oath at Westminster Abbey next May 12 he may use a form of words different from that of his predecessors.

It was made known the oath has been slightly altered in order to comply with the provisions of the statute of Westminster, which changed the status of the dominions.

The new wording, evolved after consultation between ecclesiastical and constitutional authorities, will not be revealed until the full program for the coronation is issued. It is understood the coronation service will be shorter than at the coronation of King George V, because of the absence of a queen consort.

COULD NOT LIFT

Owing To Painful Rheumatism

This woman suffered from rheumatism in her hands, arms and legs. For two months she endured this painful condition, then, like many another sufferer, she decided to try Kruschen Salts. Read her letter:

"About fifteen months ago I had rheumatism in my arms and legs. The pains in my arms and legs after getting warm in bed were almost unbearable. I was like that for two months, and could not reach above my head. I read so much about Kruschen Salts that I thought I would try them. I am so glad to say that for more than a year I have not suffered the return of my rheumatism." (Mrs.) H.E.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently due to deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts assist in stimulating the internal organ to healthy, regular activity, and help them to get rid of this excess uric acid.

Government Still Checking Up On Estate Left By Sir John Ellerman

For three years, a small army of government clerks have been checking up the estate left by Sir John Ellerman, little-known "richest man in England's history"—and they are still hard at it.

His Majesty's government can well afford the clerks' time. It expects to collect nearly £200,000,000 (about $100,000,000) or 10 per cent. of the huge fortune, which keeps on growing.

Sir John, ship-owner, industrialist and real estate magnate, died in 1933 at the age of 71. His estate was valued at £17,233,977 (about $86,119,855) "as far as can be ascertained." But only recently it was revalued at £36,684,994 (about $183,424,970), and even at that figure, additional property including large foreign interests was not included.

Now investigators have discovered more and more holdings. The final figure is expected to be about £50,000,000, or approximately $250,000,000. Exactly half of that goes to the government.

The British croesus left the bulk of his fortune to his son, the present Sir John Ellerman, now 27.

Already £14,600,000 has been turned over to the treasury in death duties—by far the largest sum the inland revenue department ever received from one estate. In addition, it is estimated that during his lifetime Sir John paid at least £20,000,000 in income tax and super-tax.

Strange Bequest

Two Sisters In England To Receive $600 A Month If They Keep Men Away From Their House

Two Baxter sisters of Harrogate, Eng., both in their 70s, will have an income of £100 ($600) a month if men keep away from their house.

Their brother, William Henry Baxter, died at the age of 86, leaving an estate of more than £250,000 ($1,250,000). He left them the monthly income on condition they do not allow any male person to reside in the house.

The sisters are Georgina Todd Baxter, 75, and Lily Thorman Baxter, 78.

Said Miss Todd: "I am afraid he was very jealous of other men where we were concerned. He objected to us speaking even to the gardener. Though he was very close at home with money he would occupy the best suite in the best hotels in London."

Brief English Schooling Has Left Trace On His Character

What has particularly pleased the boy king Peter II. of Yugoslavia is the fact that he was able to spend his birthday with English relations. The Duke of Kent is his hero and the Duchess is favorite aunt. Although King Peter is not likely to continue his English schooling, the brief time he spent in England two years ago has left a definite trace on his character, says the Daily Sketch. His grandmother, Queen Marie of Rumania, favors this and does all she can to stimulate his English interests. He already speaks excellent English.

Playing Chess By Letter

Principals in Minnesota And South Africa Engage In Slow Game

The world's slowest chess game is in progress in Blue Earth, Minnesota. One player is in Blue Earth and the other in South Africa. The players indicate their moves by letters to each other. As it takes 30 days for a letter to travel from one player to the other, the game is likely to continue for another five years. The principals in the match are John Brooks, president of the Johannesburg Chess Club, and Don Fitch, of Blue Earth. "It is a very thrilling game," Fitch declares, "Sometimes I sit up half the night deciding on the next play after I hear from Brooks. He's a pretty tough opponent, but he can't beat me before 1940 anyhow."

Television In Britain

Nothing Can Be Televised More Than 1,000 Yards From Transmitter Station

Although British television has now reached the point of efficiency whereby daily programs are broadcast from Alexandra Palace, the day apparently still is distant when a citizen will be able to enjoy a sport event from the depths of an arm chair.

At the present stage of development nothing can be televised more than 1,000 yards from the transmitting apparatus at Alexandra. The owners' sets recently showed Archie Compton, British golf pro, giving a lesson to a pupil on a miniature course at Alexandra and easily followed the flight of the ball.

Saskatchewan Woman Has Used Two Kitchen Utensils 54 Years

Back in the days when hardware was hardware, or as the old-timer says: "They made things to last," Mrs. C. A. Jaques, of Brercrest, Sask., bought a can opener and a pancake turner. That was in 1884 at the store of Henderson and Sons at Collingwood, Ontario.

The two kitchen utensils have never been out of the possession of Mrs. Jaques and she has used them on every possible occasion during the past 54 years.

Mrs. Jaques is the wife of Capt. C. A. Jaques, one of the old time captains on lake boats plying the Georgian Bay, where, according to the captain "storms were storms."

Captain and Mrs. Jaques are the parents of one of Canada's well known authors, Mrs. Edna Jamieson, better known as Miss Edna Jaques.

In The Cause Of Peace

Delegate Says 'There Is A Momentum Behind The Peace Movement'

Mrs. John Grieve, League of Nations Society delegate to the recent peace conference at Brussels, following her return to Toronto, said that the prevailing mood of the conference was "neither optimism nor dismay, but one of determination." People in Europe, she said, appeared to believe war was inevitable but that the danger was not immediate.

"The idea of the congress was to bring together on a limited platform as many people as possible, to establish a central bureau in each country to effect this platform, and an international bureau to co-ordinate the work in all countries," she said.

"There is a tremendous momentum behind the peace movement if it can only be harnessed. It will not be known how successful the congress was till we see how seriously the delegates set to work when they return."

Would Like Civic Flag

Mayor Of Vancouver Thinks Every City Should Have One

Vancouver may have its own civic flag in the near future. A letter received from England said Rev. A. Lombardini, rector of the lord mayor's church in London, wished a Canadian flag to hang in his church and hoped one would be presented to Sir Percy Vincent during his recent visit to Vancouver. As Canada has no national flag one alderman suggested a scroll, containing the British Columbia coat of arms, be sent, but Mayor P. C. McCrear said this could not be considered as a national emblem. "Really, we should have a Canadian flag, provincial flags and ensigns for all leading cities in the Dominion," the mayor said. "Other cities have their flags; why should not we have one too?"

Irrigating More Land

A pumping project that will place 2,500 acres of dry land under irrigation, has been put into operation five miles north of Brooks, Alberta. The pump is capable of lifting 10,000 gallons of water per minute into the main distributary canal. New settlers who have taken up farms in this area have already ploughed considerable acreage and are preparing ditches to receive the first application of water.

BELGIUM WOULD STAND ALONE TO DEFEND BORDERS

Brussels.—Official circles interpreted the "neutrality" speech of King Leopold, (as meaning Belgium would stand alone in the defence of her frontiers and would abrogate all pacts pledging her to go to the military aid of other nations.

Informed circles expressed belief the king's speech before the cabinet meant parliament would be urged to:

1. Withdraw from the French mutual assistance pact of 1920.
2. Withdraw from the Locarno pact.

(The other signatories are Germany, Italy, Britain and France.)

The diplomatic consensus of opinion was such actions would return Belgium to her pre-war neutrality position, with added military defence for the country's German frontier.

The Belgian parliament was summoned for extraordinary session Oct. 27.

Germany's reoccupation of the Rhineland has exposed Belgium to a repetition of its Great War experience. King Leopold said in his statement to the cabinet.

"Reoccupation of the Rhineland, violating the Locarno accord, placed us back in the international position we held before the war," he said.

"Our geographic situation condemns us to maintain a military machine to dissuade any neighbor whatsoever from using our territory to attack another state."

"Foreign policy must not proceed," he warned, "to prepare for more or less victorious war following a coalition, but to avert war from our territory."

Belgium, by dissuading any neighboring power from using its territory as an avenue of attack, would benefit the peace of western Europe and automatically earn the "respect and eventual aid of all countries interested in peace," the king continued.

Belgium "will see itself completely invaded and immediately pillaged" at the outset of any future war, unless it prepares adequate defences, Leopold said.

France Needs Wheat

French Crop Has Not Come Up To Expectations

Paris.—France, it is expected, will need more overseas wheat this year. The French crop has not met expectations. There is the further necessity of preventing a spectacular rise in the cost of living as a result of devaluation of the franc.

One of the objects of the trade talks between the Canadian and French ministers was to ensure that in any increased imports of overseas wheat, Canada would have a fair share. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, it is understood, received this assurance.

On the other hand, French farmers' organizations are very actively campaigning against any increased importation which would have the effect of lowering the internal price.

National Defence

Developments In Alberta Will Be Appropriate, Says Minister

Edmonton.—Edmonton as a "reserve supply base" in the government's scheme of national defence was envisioned by Hon. Ian A. MacKenzie, minister of national defence when interviewed. He passed through Edmonton en route to Ottawa from Vancouver after a tour of the west.

"Developments in Alberta will be appropriate to the province's position behind the mountain ramparts," said the minister.

Bankruptcy Record Low

London.—Official figures showed the lowest bankruptcy record in England in 10 years. Builders headed the list, followed by grocers, farmers and milliners. All were small traders with an average liability of £1,500 ($7,500). On the other hand four brewers failed with an average liability of £460,000 ($2,300,000).

Should Be Senator

Hon. Howard Ferguson Believes London High Commissioner Should Hold Office

Toronto.—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, former Canadian high commissioner in London, addressing a luncheon of the Women's Press Club here suggested the commissioner should be created a member of the Canadian senate so he might have a public forum.

"It is a great handicap to the high commissioner that he has no public forum to discuss affairs concerned with the high commissioner," said Mr. Ferguson. "When he is in Canada he has to go to some country fair or similar place to get a forum."

"I would like to see the present government appoint Hon. Vincent Massey (present commissioner) a senator. Then when he comes to Canada there would be a public forum from which he could speak."

"Nobody can say I am looking for a senatorship, because I don't suppose I shall be high commissioner again. But other high commissioners have felt the same way about it as I do."

No Disturbances

British Fascists Hold Meeting In London Without Disorder

London.—The British Union of Fascists, with Sir Oswald Mosley present, held a meeting Victoria park square, on the edge of the east-end Jewish quarter. There were no disturbances, however, except for one scuffle which resulted in two arrests.

Speaking in another part of London Alfred Duff Cooper, secretary of state for war, said the majority of Englishmen have no sympathy with red Communism or black Fascism."

"Steps must be taken to see that order—the greatest gift a government can give—is observed," he declared.

Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for defence co-ordination, speaking at Watford, said "these Fascists tell us that they are fighting against the Communists, but the people who are making Communism today are Sir Oswald Mosley and his friends."

"The government are compelled to consider whether measures are not necessary to restrict liberties because these people abuse them," Sir Thomas added.

Build New Churches

Despite Drought Conditions, Spiritual Advancement Shown In West

Montreal.—Despite the physical hardships inflicted by continued drought, western Canada showed remarkable spiritual advancement, Rev. W. C. Smalley, of Edmonton, told the 47th annual meeting of Eastern Ontario and Quebec Women's Home Baptist Missionary Society.

The drought area was greater this year and hardships increased, the speaker said, but Canadians in the prairie provinces have built 24 new churches since 1930.

Directors Report An Operating Surplus At Annual Meeting

Winnipeg.—Payment of all obligations due during the year was reported by directors to the annual meeting of the Manitoba Pool Elevators, Ltd., here.

The directors reported an operating surplus for the year ended July 15, 1936, of $348,000. From this amount was paid $203,000 due the Manitoba government and $37,000 on a terminal. The balance was placed in the reserves and working capital accounts which now total over $625,000.

The elevator company operates 153 country elevators in Manitoba and last year handled 9,063,021 bushels or 27.5 per cent of the total grain delivered in Manitoba in the 1935-36 season.

No Lives Lost

Ten Trans-Atlantic Flights This Year Without Loss Of Life

New York.—This is a comeback year for trans-Atlantic flying.

Ten aeroplane flights have been made across the tossing north Atlantic—more than in any other year. Not a life has been lost, in bright contrast to the tragic history that saw 26 perish in the nine preceding years.

BRITISH POLICY IS DESIGNED TO MAINTAIN PEACE

Sheffield.—Anxiety lest "some unexpected development in the tense international situation" disturb the peace of Europe was expressed by Foreign Secretary Eden at the traditional Cutlers' feast here.

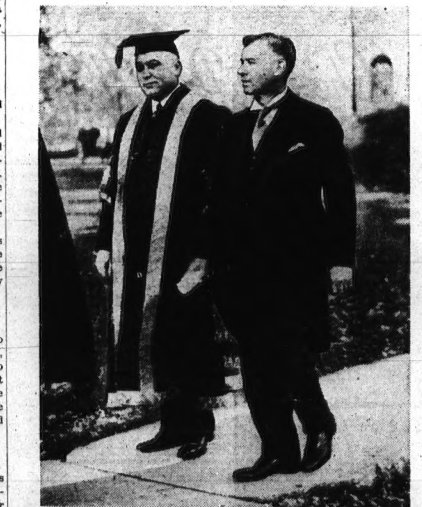

In certain directions there are even now signs of improvement in the international situation," Eden said, "but it would be foolish to blind ourselves to the difficulties—it is not so much the evident dangers that must cause anxiety, as fear of some unexpected development in the tense international situation."

"Our endeavor must be to reduce temperature, but that task becomes steadily more difficult in Europe where partisan feeling is kept at fever heat."

He pledged the government to work to the utmost to ensure comity of reason shall prevail. "I believe the time will come and may not be far distant," he declared, "when this nation, strong of aim and purpose, will be able to turn the scales on the side of peace and freedom."

He emphasized the British government strongly and unwaveringly supported a policy of non-intervention in Spain and was determined to carry out loyally its own undertaking and promote in every way possible execution of the terms of the agreement. The government, he said, considered this "the best, if not the only way, to avert the dangerous developments inherent in the Spanish situation."

Spirit Of McGill

Reflected In Graduates Who Accepted Responsibility

Montreal.—The spirit of McGill University was reflected in graduates who accepted responsibility in the task of establishing "an ultimate harmony of existence," W. E. Gladstone Murray said at a luncheon in his honor. Speaking before the McGill graduates' society, the newly-appointed head of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation said he saw a need for more general diffusion of the spirit of McGill. "Those who have the spirit have a sense of stewardship and a sense of responsibility," he added. Some qualities gained at the university included a sense of detachment, ability to look forward and backward and a sense of honor.

Purchases Girl Pat

Reported That Lady Houston Plans To Present It To The Crew

Georgetown, British Guiana.—Lady Houston, donor of $500,000 to support England's entry in the Schneider trophy air race, has purchased the runaway Grimsby Trawler Girl Pat and plans to give it to its crew. It was reported here.

Advice from London said the purchase price was $18,500 and that the donor provided an additional $2,500 to sail the ship to England from Port Georgetown, where it was captured by police last June.

Alberta Air Service

Daily Service Between Calgary And Edmonton Next Spring

Calgary.—Daily air mail and passenger service will be operated from Lethbridge to Calgary and Edmonton to link up with the trans-Canada route. It was known here after a visit of Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport.

En route to Ottawa, Mr. Howe announced Calgary and Edmonton would have an air mail service, starting next spring, and later passenger carriage would be provided.

Strengthen Fortifications

Germany Speeds Construction Of Forts Along Borders

Berlin.—Lines of concrete fortifications and gun emplacements are rising around Germany's borders. Ten gun bases have been started on rocky Heligoland island off the Schleswig coast while workmen speed construction of other forts along the western and southeastern frontiers.

In addition, the Heligoland marine harbor, destroyed by the Allies after the Great War, is being rebuilt.

Most of the Heligoland bases have been located on top of the rocky island point where four large emplacements have been built and guns already moved into place. Half a dozen smaller gun positions are under construction in other sections.

The work of fortifying the other borders of Germany has proceeded under strictest secrecy—particularly along the French frontier on the west and the Czechoslovakian frontier on the southeast.

The Rhineland and black forest defences have been described in official statements as disconnected "pill box" strongholds opposite the elaborate concrete and steel fortifications of the "Magnet" line.

Heavy Rains In States

Hindering Fall Farm Work In Some Drouth Sections

Washington.—Heavy rains now are hindering fall farm operations in some sections of the United States laid waste by lack of moisture a few months ago.

In its weekly crop report, the weather bureau said that recent downpours were delaying the seeding of winter grains, halting the husking of corn, impeding the harvest of potatoes and such of sugar beets, and retarding the picking and ginning of the cotton crop.

"The top soil has become too wet for working in considerable sections of the interior," the bureau reported, especially in such of the northern Ohio valley, the central Mississippi valley and the lower great plains."

RUSSIA DEMANDS A BLOCKADE OF PORTUGAL PORTS

Moscow.—Russia demanded blockade of Portuguese ports to prevent shipments of arms to the Spanish insurgents.

An official communique called upon the non-intervention committee to urge the British or French navy, or both, to patrol Portuguese ports.

"We demand from the committee the establishment of such control," the communique said.

The Russian demands, the communique said, were handed directly in the form of a note to the Earl of Plymouth, chairman of the Spanish non-intervention committee in London.

The note also demanded, it was said, that the body be reconvened immediately to consider concrete proposals which Russia advanced to prevent violation of the hands-off Spain agreement.

The text of the Russian demands was given Lord Plymouth by the Soviet representative Mol Etyevch Kagan, "in connection with his declaration of Oct. 7."

This "declaration" charged Italy, Germany and Portugal with breaking their Spanish non-intervention pledges and held the alleged violations made the agreement but "a screen" for aid to the insurgents at the expense of the Spanish government.

Kagan's note, the communique said, "presented the following for the urgent consideration of the committee:

"The main supply of rebel arms is carried on through Portugal and through Portuguese ports."

"A minimum urgent measure to put an end to this supply and to violation of the non-intervention agreement would be immediate establishment of control over Portuguese ports."

"We demand from the committee establishment of such control."

"We suggest the enforcement of the control measures be turned over to the French or British fleet, or both, acting together."

"Without such minimum and urgent measure against violation of the agreement, it will soon be not only defunct, but will serve as a screen for aid to the rebels against the legal Spanish government."

APPLICATIONS FOR PENSIONS SHOW LARGE INCREASE

Ottawa.—More than 10,000 persons in Canada are receiving the war veterans' allowance, with applications pouring in to the board, it was learned here. Due to misapprehension on the part of innumerable servicemen who are under the impression the age limit was reduced at the last session of parliament from 60 to 55 years, applicants have increased from 300 in January to more than 1,000 in July, officials said.

Heretofore the act provided for a class of veterans, it was explained. One was the person who had reached the age of 60; the other was the man who, through physical or mental disability, was permanently unemployable, regardless of age.

The latest parliamentary amendment an amendment was approved taking care of the "borderline classes." These embraced ex-servicemen who had served in a theatre of actual war and who, having reached the age of 55, were incapable of maintaining themselves because of "wrecking, disabilities and general unfitness."

The war veterans' allowance board has not the power to award grants to men in normal physical and mental health at the age of 55.

The allowance to unmarried veterans is $20 a month, and to married, $40. The men are encouraged to take faithful employment, however, and to make casual earnings.

For State Medicine

Proposal To Place Plan Before Saskatchewan Legislature

Saskatoon.—Adoption of a constitution, election of officers and a proposal to place a practical scheme of state medicine before the next session of the Saskatchewan legislature, emerged from the meeting of the Saskatchewan State Hospital and Medicine League.

Dr. S. E. Moore, of Regina, was elected president of the newly-formed league, which has as its objective the promotion of socialization of the medical structure of the province; to gather, tabulate, compile and distribute information derived from worldwide sources to the public, and to assist the government to promote state medicine.

Alderman C. L. Dent, of Prince Albert, who has served as provisional president since April, was chosen vice-president of the league.

A slate of five directors chosen consisted of: L. J. Waine, of Prince Albert; Rev. W. G. Brown, former moderator of the Presbyterians church, and Frank Eliason, U.F.C. secretary, of Saskatoon; Reeve M. S. Anderson, of Pelly, and J. E. Near, president of the Rural Municipality Association, of Pinkham. The directive board was given power to add two women directors to its number.

The 28-year-old flyer disregarded warnings of air officials and veteran flyers who urged her not to make the final hop across the Tasman sea from Sydney.

Before she left Sydney she said: "If I go down in the sea, no one must fly out to look for me."

W. J. BARTLETT, PUBLISHER

Blairmore, Alta., Fri., Oct. 23, 1936

The Premier possesses an amazing inconsistency. Long before he began his campaign of belittling the influence of all newspapers, he had in view the purchase of the organ now partly owned by his party. His attitude is grossly misleading and might be classed as drawing a red herring across the trail, to divert people's attention from the real objective which he promised he would achieve. The selling of stock for the party paper has been disappointing, only about one-seventh of the purchase price, it is reported, having been raised. So unfair has been his attitude that the weekly publishers of Alberta sent him a strongly worded protest putting the issue squarely up to him to name the papers which he accuses of misrepresentation. He has the means to immediately take action, but he prefers to accuse all in a mass of generalities which mean little or nothing except to denounce all newspapers for purely political reasons. These week trials and rhetorical fireworks displayed via the radio are done for effect. They lack sincerity, and yet Mr. Aberhart's purpose far better than bringing definite charges or taking legal measures to effect a remedy, except threats to muzzle the opposition press. Newspapers are the voice of the people. The people's freedom is menaced when the freedom of the press is shackled. No newspaper yet has turned down a "Letter to the Editor," provided it is not abusive or libellous character. The very people whom Mr. Aberhart so graciously asks if he shall license the Press, or listen to the bondholders, do not realize the danger they are placing themselves in of being hog-tied by covenants and the evils of ill-considered legislation which already has caused the province harm from which it will take years to recover.—Coleman Journal.

JUST A PEEP SHOW

Premier Aberhart, when addressing a public meeting at Taber this week again severely criticised many so-called 100 per cent social crediters who were refusing to take Prosperity Certificates in change from retailers. He went so far as to say that if this attitude continued, he did not think it would be much use trying to introduce Alberta Credit among them, as he had also been informed that a number had signed the covenant without any intention of carrying out the provisions in it.

Premier Aberhart should now be able to understand the meaning of the old expression "Sowing the wind and reaping the whirl wind." The Social Credit party in its campaign appealed to the most selfish instincts of the voter by promising (without any strings to it) that every adult resident of Alberta would receive $25 per month. When this promised $25 a month fades into a dim prospect of $5 in an illusive something called Alberta Credit, and in addition he or she has to turn over 15 or 20 per cent of their Canadian currency income for this same illusive credit, the prospect doesn't look so good.

We wonder with the Premier how many who signed the covenant are prepared to carry out this clause.

It looks as if the Government troubles will start along with the starting of Social Credit. To borrow from the Bible the Review thinks they are just "Seeing through a glass darkly."—Okotoks Review.

"George," his wife said severely, "why didn't you stand up?"

"Well," he replied, "I was going to, but you know dear, I look like the devil in a silk hat."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

The Shape of a Picture—Horizontal or Vertical?

When the principal lines of a subject are horizontal, don't forget to hold the camera horizontally. Composition may be further improved by enlarging and trimming.

FROM the standpoint of artistic composition the shape of a picture makes a lot of difference. This statement may seem axiomatic but how often do we snapshooters give thought to it in using our cameras? We all know that most cameras are so constructed as to give us a choice between horizontal and vertical pictures, depending upon the position in which we hold the camera, but in the business of taking pictures there seems to be a sort of psychology of laziness that makes us choose the way most convenient to our hands. With some cameras the vertical position seems easier, with others the horizontal, and to change to the other position seems to require an effort. Too many of us don't make the effort, when we should.

So, we go right on taking pictures the easier way without bothering about the shape of them, when a little thought and little more than a twist of the wrist would make all the difference between good and bad composition. Remember that the lines enclosing a picture are almost as much a part of its composition as the lines inside.

Snapshot albums show all too many pictures of vertical subjects, including persons in full length poses, with a vast waste of margin, right and left, because they were taken with the camera in horizontal position. This is bad, because, for one thing, the excess of margin distorts the importance of the subject and for another, distracting objects are usually present on one side or the other. That snapshot of Mother picking flowers in the garden is an excellent likeness, but why the corner of the garage on the left margin and clothes reel on the right? These ugly objects would have been eliminated if the up-and-down view had been used.

In the case of scenic pictures, a spreading landscape and such subjects as a flock of sheep or a herd of cattle almost always call for the horizontal position, but no less often does a picture of a tree, a waterfall or a skyscraper demand the vertical. It is simply making sure that the lines which give length to your subject parallel the long edges of the film, thus avoiding an overbalance of margin above and below or to the right and left, as the case may be.

So much for planning the shape of a picture before you take it, but composition can be improved, indeed often much improved, by shaping the picture after you take it. There are two ways of doing it. You may reduce the margins and, in some cases, also cut out distracting objects by trimming the print; or, still more effectively, you may make the negative so as to leave a selected portion and, from this portion, have an enlargement made.

Thus, a vertical subject in a vertical panel that has cut out detail on the sides becomes much more impressive; its height and importance have been enhanced. Similarly, with a horizontal subject, a horizontal panel will emphasize its "ropose" lines and accentuate its sweep.

Most good pictorial work, such as finds a place in salons because of its artistic excellence, is usually the combined result of choosing the right camera position, making the negative and trimming the print.

CANADA LAGS IN FISH CONSUMPTION

Compared to the people of England, Canadians are poor fish eaters, in the opinion of Alfred H. Brittain, head of one of Canada's largest fish producing companies and former president of the Canadian Fisheries Association. Over in the Old Country the consumption of fish amounts to about 48 pounds per person. Here in the Dominion it is only about 21 pounds per capita. Yet, according to reports presented to the fishing industry, Canadian fish is noted the world over for its flavor and quality.

Mr. Brittain has continuously advocated an educational and advertising campaign by the government to help increase markets within the Dominion for Canadian fish. If the national consumption of fish were to be increased by only ten pounds per capita it would mean approximately another 100,000,000 pounds of fish.

With the present crusade for the increased consumption of fish now appearing in the newspapers and magazines of the Dominion that goal seems to be drawing nearer. According to Mr. Brittain such an increase would add materially to the general welfare; it would benefit the transportation companies and affiliated industries; it would increase the revenue of the primary producer; and it would provide a real stimulus for the entire fishing industry.

EXTEND "BLOTTER" SURFACING OF MAIN ALBERTA ROADS

In drafting its appropriations for 1937, the Alberta Public Works Department plans to include 200 miles of hard surfacing on its main highways program, according to an announcement by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister in charge of this important branch of the provincial service.

The department is planning far ahead, having in view a five-year scheme, under which a total of 1,100 miles of main roads would be hard surfaced within the period stated.

Important stretches of the highway which runs north from the Montana border through Calgary and on to Edmonton, would be hard surfaced next year. These improvements would tie in with the hard surfacing of the Calgary-Waterton highway which is to be undertaken next season by the province and dominion on a joint sharing basis.

Surveys are already being made by the provincial highways department in order to decide upon its road improvement program for 1937.

The department also intends to prepare a comprehensive highway map which will reveal just how the permanent road development of Alberta is proposed under the five-year plan. If at all possible, the program would be completed in four years.

Part Of National Life

Democracy Has Been Accepted In Britain For Two Centuries

It was fashionable a few years ago to speak of democracy as being "on trial". In many countries it is no longer on trial, but has been condemned and executed. In this country it is not, and never was (at any rate for the past couple of hundred years) on trial; it is part and parcel of our national life, and something which it behooves us to regard as no less permanent than Herr Hitler's "thousand-year regime." If anything is on trial it is rather dictatorship, for we have still to see what happens to it when the day comes to find the successors of the men whose personality had laid its stamp upon their creations. No country can depend on a perpetual supply of fitters and Muscovites. In their default, will anybody care to say that dictatorship, relying as it does upon a very inflexible principle of personal leadership, is likely to prove any more stable than democracy?—London Morning Post.

The veteran in youth movements, Lord Baden-Powell, who has been on the Girl Guides as her husband is on the Boy Scouts, is indefatigable in his efforts for the cause. With his encouragement, the boys have worked hard to make Maryculter House look very much as it did in the twelfth century, when it was inhabited by the Knights Templars who daily did their "good turns." The grey and red colors of the Knights Templars have been reproduced in the scheme, and the interior has been decorated so far as may be in true medieval style.

Safety For Miners

Science Has Instruments To Detect Threatened Cave-In

Scientific ears, mechanical thermometers and other stethoscopes will feel the pulse of mother earth in the future and give miners advance warning of impending cave-ins. J. V. Claypool, of Hibbing, Minn., told the National Safety Conference at Atlantic City, N.J.

Claypool, district superintendent of the Oliver Iron Mining Company, said detection of weak spots in the walls and props of mines were rapidly becoming an exact science.

He told of a new "dynamometer prop" that records the earth's pressure against the mine's pillars much in the same manner as a thermometer records temperature. The device is built into one of the ceiling supports, and the slightest increase in pressure from above is recorded by a rise of a mercury column.

Another device utilizes a steel bar, fitted telescopically into a cylinder and held in place by a stout coil spring. When set against mine ceiling, compression of the spring is registered by a stylus that traces a line on a drum.

Clever Girl Now Does Buying For Busy Professional Men

A clever girl went about to offices in one city and asked busy professional men if she might bring goods to them in their offices so they could save time in making their selections of socks, ties, shirts, belts, handkerchiefs, etc. She secured all the facts about their needs, such as colors preferred and approximate price they wished to pay.

These men found this girl a good shopper; and with so little exertion they could get the brown tie they wanted to wear with their tan suit and the shirt that set it off. She showed them only articles in their own sizes, and she had even the correct shirt sleeve lengths when she brought the shirts for selection. The men found they saved money and much time by this method of shopping.—Christian Science Monitor.

Farmers From Czechoslovakia Will Settle Here Next Spring

In Winnipeg to study land settlement possibilities in Western Canada, Adolf Schmidt, secretary of the Central Farmers' Co-operative Association with headquarters in Prague, said 60 families will come to Canada next spring to settle on farms.

If good reports are sent back to Czechoslovakia, Mr. Schmidt said, other settlers will follow. The association has a membership of 10,000. The farmers who will come here next spring, he continued, will have a capital of from $1,000 to $5,000 per family.

Week-End Drinkers

Chicago Medical Authority Points To Perils Of Chronic Tipplers

Liquor takes its heaviest toll on the "week-end drinkers"—those persons who vary periodic alcoholic spree with short rides on the "water wagon"—a Chicago medical authority declared at Kansas City.

That type of drinker, said Dr. Joseph A. Capps, professor of medicine at the University of Chicago, courts an eventual "mental breakdown" and suffers "loss of will power and confidence in himself during the process."

These errors are not so prone to dog the chronic tippler, who instead invites cirrhosis of the liver as the price for his indulgence, said Dr. Capps.

"Our danger is that we're becoming a nation of hard liquor drinkers. Over a period of years this is going to mean a decline in the health and mental integrity of our country," he declared.

"If young people must drink, the sensible thing is to use mild drinks (beer and wines), and keep away from hard liquor."

However, drinking may play a legitimate part in the lives of persons beyond middle age, the doctor said.

"Work recently done by a Boston specialist goes to show that a small amount of spirits late in life tends to preserve the arteries."

Might Be Good Idea

Canadian Critic Thinks Novels Should Be Graded Like Eggs

"Great art never appears in advance of a public able to appreciate it," William Arthur Deacon, well-known Canadian critic, stated in an address at London, Ontario.

"If novels could be graded, like eggs, the reading public might be sure of spending their too-few reading hours with guaranteed articles," Mr. Deacon said.

Unfortunately, in the realm of the aesthetic there are no standards and no honest critic can infallibly select literary "eggs" that can be warranted good.

Mr. Deacon impressed on his audience his belief that, as a critic, his opinions were not necessarily better than theirs. But he hoped, he said, to encourage them to increase the joys of their own reading by attaining a critical attitude towards what they read.

"When novels are pouring from the presses of the English-speaking world at a rate of approximately 20 a day, the most assiduous reader cannot hope to cover more than a small minority of them," the speaker said.

Britain Accepts Challenge

Race With Russia For Gold Output Has Started

For all of 1936 Soviet Russia is expected to produce about 6,000,000 ounces of gold. And because of its expansion program the Soviet Union is expected to be the world's largest gold producer by 1939. At present South Africa holds the title. British interests say that all of South Africa's mines are going full blast. They hope that by 1939 the gold producing title will be retained.

It is interesting to note that in 1928 the Soviet Union produced only 889,000 ounces of the precious metal. Last year the full output was 5,650,000 ounces. According to informed mining interests the rich deposits of gold ore in Siberia are still virgin territory. The British have accepted the challenge. And so the race for gold output is on.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 25

CHRISTIANITY AS LOVE

Golden text: Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love. I Corinthians 13:13.

Lesson: Acts 18:1-17; I Corinthians 13.

Devotional reading: John 15:12-17.

Explanations And Comments

Love is Essential, I Corinthians 13:1-3. There was jealousy of one another in the Corinthian church. Many of the members aspired to be conspicuous figures: some could teach, some could heal—which had the greater gift? Bitter arguments, sharp words, wasted energy resulted from their contentions. This question Paul discusses in chapters 12, 13 and 14 of his first letter to them. In chapter 12 he argues that there are three gifts, but the Spirit is the same; in chapter 13 that the gift of prophecy is better than the gift of tongues; and in the midst of these arguments he suddenly stops and writes chapter 13.

It is as if he says, "The pity of it all overwhelms him. 'See,' he writes, 'covet earnestly the best gifts,' and always remember that there is 'a more excellent way'; and then he contrasts the spirit they are showing with what they would and what they would not do if love actuated all their actions, shows them how superior love is to all else.

The apostle read into the word love an absolutely new significance. Nothing of the anarchy, nothing of the inanity; nothing of the passion; but love as it abides in God, its fountain head, and was revealed when Jesus died as the selfless Lamb of God" (P. B. Meyers).

Emotional gifts, ecstatic utterances, are valueless, without meaning, eloquence unexpressed by love means more than so much noise, declares Paul in his words, "If I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am become sounding brass, or a clanging cymbal." Trumpets and cymbals were employed in the worship in pagan temples to produce deafening noises. His illustration was probably drawn from the shrill, discordant noise made with their tongues by the speakers, each endeavoring to drown the voice of the others, as we hear from 14:23 to have been the case with the Corinthians.

Paul next enumerates intellectual gifts—the gift of prophecy, the knowledge of mysteries and all knowledge, and the most perfect faith—and declares that if their possessor lacks love he is nothing. Note the contrast between what a man has and what he is: he may have extraordinary gifts, but he is nothing.

Governments Agree Arms Embargo Does Not Include Gas Masks

Gas masks do not come under the heading of "war material," it was decided in London by the international committee that is attempting to supervise non-intervention in the Spanish civil war. The committee had before it more than a dozen replies from governments all agreeing that gas masks should not be prohibited under the various arms embargoes now in force. Consequently the exportation of gas masks becomes legal hereafter to either side in the civil war.

A Royal Privilege

Toronto Witness Allowed To Affirm Rather Than Take Oath

Rev. D. I. Elison took advantage of a royal privilege granted to Presbyterians 300 years ago when he appeared in women's court at Toronto. The minister expressed a wish to affirm rather than take an oath on the Bible in a bigamy case in which he was called as a witness.

"A Presbyterian and not swear on the Bible?" exclaimed Magistrate Cowan.

Told of the royal privilege, Mr. Cowan said he had been a Presbyterian all his life and had never heard of it. He allowed the witness to affirm his intention of telling the truth.

Thou Shalt Not Love

— A NOVEL BY —
GEORGIA CRAIG

"What was there to do? I tossed a twenty-dollar bill to one of the attendants to see that he got into his car all right. Such caution was not worth selling my hands over."

Pain tore at Starr's heart. His words were properly chosen, but there was something in his careless tone. What he really meant, it was quite plain to her, that her honor was not worth selling his hands over! A twenty-dollar bill was nothing. Money smoothed his play-boy path wherever he went. . . . An icy hand clutched at Starr's heart. For it was quite as plain to her that he expected his money to win her. In his own way, on his own terms, money happened in this game.

Not for the world, though, would she have let him know she realized that. With a flash of her old bravado, she said flippantly:

"And what does that make me?" Lance's black eyebrows lifted slightly, and he smiled, with a touch of indulgence.

"I hope it makes me your cavalier for the evening, at least," he said, his voice low, almost a whisper. There was a wealth of meaning in his tone which lent his innocent words a deep significance.

Starr turned away from him with a wave of revulsion. Lance Marlowe was quick-eyed; he was trained to the nuances of feminine emotion. He saw his mistake instantly, and his face darkened.

"I should have known better than to use my usual line on you." There was a touch of insolence intended. Then he shrugged. "I suppose you're not wanting to stay any longer—"

—so at least, I can see you to your car, get your wrap for you, or something?" Starr cried out almost in a panic. "No—no! Nothing. And I have no intention of running away from—"

—oh, say or say no!" But in spite of her deft, suddenly she was feeling from him. Anywhere to get away. She had said she meant to stay, but all she really wanted to do was to get away forever from this mad, glittering playtime world. It was not in any way what she had expected it would be. Living out her spin in drab obscurity was better—a million times—than this!

Half-blinded with the tears she was forcing back as she dashed up the balcony steps, she collided with something that stopped her flight. The strong, vital body of a man. A second her face was buried against the front of a starched shirt; then she looked up, dazed.

"Start! For Heaven's sake! Where do you think you're going? Out to beat some kind of a record?" Michael's hands were gripping her shoulders. Michael's face beamed down at her. He was so full of his own satisfaction that he did not even notice his own intrusion. He could think things lightly like that, make humorous remarks, laugh! when her heart was breaking!

Again she was conscious of the overpowering attraction of his presence, like an intoxicant in her blood that sent it singing along through every vein in her body. She fought against it desperately. Why must it be like this?

Michael was so pleased that he almost hugged her. Yet his pleasure was simply that of a man who had just put over a good business deal. It was all in the head, not the heart. He grinned, standing off to look at her with his head cocked a little to one side.

"Pret-ty swell!" he commented. "You are marvelous, Starr—superb! Everything is going just as we planned; better than we planned. You'll be the talk of the town tomorrow!"

"The casual coqueness of the man! As long as his own end was served, what did he care the price a woman paid? But how could she know he was congratulating himself on his own perspicacity—and his luck!—at picking up a girl who hung out in La Luna and having her turn out like this, as if she had been used to people of this kind all her life? Or perhaps it was her training for her 'racket' that helped?

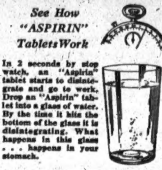

Starr's resentment raged again. Conflicting strangely with her burning emotions. She clenched her fists until the scarlet nails dug into her palms. A cold, brittle voice came through her painted lips.

"I can't go through with it, Michael."

His jaw dropped, and he stared. "Can't go through with it?" he echoed unbelievably. "But why?"

"ASPIRIN"
Tablets Work

In 2 seconds by drop water, an "Aspirin" tablet starts to disintegrate and goes to work. Drop an "Aspirin" tablet into a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. What happens in this glass happens in your stomach.

For QUICK Relief If you suffer from headaches what you want is quick relief. "Aspirin" tablets give quick relief, for one reason, because they dissolve or disintegrate almost instantly they touch moisture. (Note illustration above.)

Hence—when you take an "Aspirin" tablet it starts to dissolve almost as quickly as you swallow it. And thus is ready to start working almost instantly—headaches, neuralgia and neuritis pains start easing almost at once.

"Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trademark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Try it. You'll say it's marvelous.

What's the matter?" Has anything happened?

Suddenly it was he who was agitated. He saw his money-making scheme falling through because of the whim of a girl he should have known better than to have trusted in the first place. His hands tightened their grip on her shoulders, sending shooting sparks of fire through her soft flesh.

He said rapidly: "What's wrong, Starr? Haven't I done enough for you? Isn't the salary high enough? I'll raise it!"

Money! Was that all that men thought about? And this particular one probably thought she was trying to hold him up, now that he had confessed she was making good, better than he had hoped she would.

A deep, trembling sigh shook her whole body, only to be repressed. She realized only too well how hopeless it was to try to explain, to try to make him understand what this night had done to her. She had too plain a memory of the one or two occasions when she tentatively had tried to make him understand that she was not the kind of girl one usually picked up in place like La Luna. He had not believed her. She had known that. All he had seen in her was a good little actress who could carry out his plans, and he was thanking his lucky stars that sometime or other she had known what was called "the better things of life."

She writhed before his taunt, searching face. Dusky lashes shadowed against her ivory cheeks, hissing her passion-filled eyes from him. "Money!" she repeated dully. "That's not the reason. I've changed my mind, that's all!"

"All?" A long moment he paused. When he spoke again a harsh note had crept into his voice. A note of contempt.

"I didn't know you were a quitter, Starr."

Her vivid face flashed up to meet his gaze. What he said stung her more than all that had gone before.

"So that's what you think of me?" "What else do you expect me to think?" He shrugged, and a queer little quirk came around the corners of his mouth. "Or is it perhaps, that Lance Marlowe has offered you a more attractive proposition? He would!"

She glared at him, breathless in her instantaneous raging fury.

(To Be Continued)

"And what is your name, my little man?"

"Henry, sir."

"Why did you parents name you Henry?"

"I'm the eighth, sir!"

"Why has your husband been summoned?"

"I'm not quite sure, but I think a policeman held up his hand and Jack put his foot on the exasperator!"

"If you are doing business every day it is necessary to tell the public that fact."

Opening His First Parliament

King Edward will be speaking to

Crowded House

King Edward will open the first parliament of his reign at Westminster November 3. He will drive in full state from Buckingham Palace to the House of Lords, and will read his speech from the throne to a chamber crowded with peers and peeresses and with the "Faithful Commons" in attendance.

The King will not wear a crown. The crown and the sword of state will be taken from St. James' Palace to the House of Lords in a state landau, guarded by an escort of life guards, and the cap of maintenance, the other emblem of royal power, will be carried in front of the King. Not until he has been crowned at Westminster Abbey in May will King Edward wear his crown.

If he follows the example of his father, who also opened his first parliament some time before his coronation, the King will wear full-dress naval uniform for his drive from the palace, and will don heavy robes of crimson velvet edged with gold for the ceremony in the Lords, putting on the cocked hat of an admiral when he comes to read the speech from the throne.

While he is at the House of Lords the King will carry out another ceremony of great constitutional importance. This is the signing of the royal declaration of Protestant faith, which the sovereign must make either at the opening of his first parliament or at his coronation, whichever comes first.

Another Boat Salvaged

German Battleship Taken From

Scapa Flow To Shipbreaking Yard

The former German battleship Kaiser, salvaged from the sea bed at Scapa Flow, completed her journey from the Orkneys to the ship-breaking yard at Rosyth Dockyard.

She carried a crew of 14 men, who were accommodated in huts erected to the keel, and whose duties were to attend to the pumps which kept the hulk afloat.

Like the other vessels of the scuttled fleet which have been raised and taken to Rosyth, the Kaiser made the passage upside down, towed by three Dutch tugs—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Employees Are Protected

Reduction in King Edward's Staff

Will Be Gradual

Reorganization of the working of the royal estate at Sandringham has involved a reduction in staff but the King has given an assurance that no employee is to be discharged before he has obtained another job.

Much of the land formerly farmed by the King is to be split up and let to tenant farmers, and the forestry staff is being reduced. The farms retained are being further mechanized. Some of the men thus released are going to the fax factory on the royal estate, started by King George a few years ago.

The report that there will be a considerable reduction in the staff at Balmoral and that the castle is in future to be used purely as a shooting lodge is entirely without foundation. For the sake of efficiency some reorganization will be necessary, but this will in no way affect the King's close association with Deeside.

Seventy Varieties Of Maple

Sugar In Commercial Quantities

Only Obtained From One

There are over 70 varieties of maple trees in the world, but only one of the seventy yields sugar in commercial quantities. This is the famous hard or sugar maple which grows in Canada from the Atlantic Ocean to the Lake of the Woods and in the eastern United States. Its beautiful leaf is the national emblem of the Dominion. About 95 per cent. of the maple products' industry in Canada is at present confined to the St. Lawrence River valley.

Flowers of the "Dutchman's-pipe" catch pollen-laden insects and refuse to release them until the blossoms have been pollinated.

Little Helps For This Week

The Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon Him, to all that call upon Him in truth. Psalm 145:18.

Be Thou O Rock of Ages nigh: So shall each murmuring thought be gone.

And grief and care and fear shall fly. As clouds before the mid-day sun.

Take courage and turn your troubles which are without remedy into material for spiritual progress. Often turn to the Lord who is watching you amid your labors and distractions. He sends you help and blesses your afflictions. This thought should enable you to bear your troubles patiently and gently, for love of Him who only allows you to be tried for your own good. Raise your heart constantly to God, seek His aid, and let the foundation stone of your consolation be your happiness in being His. All vexations and annoyances will be comparatively unimportant while you know you have a Friend who is such a Refuge.

Tribute To Boy Scouts

In the course of a tribute to the effectiveness of boy scout training during a discussion of juvenile delinquency at the world conference of Rotarians at Atlantic City, Dr. Amos O. Squires of Ossining, N.Y., stated that statistics showed only three out of every 30,000 criminals had ever been boy scouts.

Motorists who insist on their rights often get them. Only they're spelled "r-i-t-e-s", and slow music goes with them.

AIR CELL 'A' BATTERY

The quality of radio reception largely depends on your batteries. Ask for Eveready—and be sure!

IT IS AIR CELL that has made battery radio so immensely popular these days. Air Cell—the modern battery—does away with the necessity of re-charging.

Air Cell maintains itself by simply breathing air. It sounds like a miracle and it is indeed one of Science's great achievements. Best of all, peak power level is maintained for 1000 playing hours. No dwindling of power as in other batteries.

And Layerbilt! Well—everyone knows it is the super "B" battery. It is built in tightly-packed layers and gives far longer life than the old-fashioned round-cell types. Thus you don't have to change your "B" battery as often as formerly.

This year, Eveready has eliminated the terminal posts and given you one socket—this means only one connection for each "B" battery. For perfect team work—Air Cell plus Layerbilt.
